"Good company, good wine, good welcome, makes good people"
WILLIAM SHAKESPEARE

"The flavor of wines is like delicate poetry"
LOUIS PASTEUR

"Wine, one sip of this will bathe the drooping spirits in delight beyond the bliss of dreams"
JOHN MILTON

*By wine we are generous made;
It furnishes fancy with wings;
Without it we never should have had Philosophers, poets or kings.*
ANON.: "WINE AND WISDOM", 1710

"Wine rejoices the heart of man, and joy is the mother of all virtue".
J. W. Goethe

"Wine measurably drunk, and in season, bringeth gladness to the heart, and cheerfulness to the mind".
ECCLESIASTICUS 31:28

"Wine that maketh glad to the heart of man".
PSALMS 104:15

"A house with great wine stored below lives in our imagination as a joyful house, fast and splendidly rooted in the soil".

CHAMPAGNES

The name of Champagne is limited not only to a defined area but to a process through which every drop of wine must go before it can claim the name.

A good Champagne must have a combination of freshness, delicacy, richness and raciness, and a gently stimulating power, which no other wine has ever quite attained.

The chief difference between the brands of Champagne lies in the making of the Cuvee.

Irroy, Krug, Bollinger are the best examples of the old style making full-flavored, mature tasting Champagnes.

Another fashion is to make a super-luxury wine, relegating (in theory) even the best vintages to second place. Dom Ruinart, Heidsieck Diamant Blue, Dom Perignon, Roederer Crystal and Comtes de Champagne Taittinger are all in this bracket.

WHITES FROM FRANCE
COTE DE BEAUNE

The very name of Burgundy has a ring of richness about it.

Let Paris be France's head. Champagne her soul, there is no doubt about what Burgundy is, her stomach. It is the most famous of the ancient duchies of France. But long before either, even before Christianity came to France, it was famous for its wine. The consumer should remember to make the distinction between the name of the vineyard and of a commune.

The difference between a Chevalier Montrachet, from one famous vineyard, and a Chassagne Montrachet, from anywhere in a big commune, is not obvious, but it is vital.

North, on the border of Puligny, there is the best white wine Burgundy, if not the world.

The Grand Cru Montrachet earns its fame by an almost unbelievable concentration of the qualities of white burgundy. It has more scent, a bright gold, a longer flavour, more succulence and yet more definition, everything about is intensified - the mark of truly great wine. The other Grand Crus grouped about it come near but rarely excel it. Chevalier Montrachet tends to be more delicate, coming from ground so strong that tilling it is barely worthwhile: its good soil is even used for renewing Le Montrachet.

Batard lies on richer ground and often, not always, fails to achieve the same finesse. Les Premier Crus Puligny, Les Cailleret et Les Folatieres very often belong in the same class.

There is a distinction between Puligny Montrachet and Meursault, quite clear in the minds of people who know them well, but almost impossible to define.

Meursault is, to attempt the impossible, a slightly, softer, drier, less fruity wine than Puligny Montrachet. The words "nutty" and "mealy" are used of it, whereas Puligny is more a matter of apricots and peaches.

The other appellation Grand Cru the Corton Charlemagne is a magnificent dry, forceful lingering, elegant wine, among Burgundy's very best.

CHABLIS

Sleepy little Chablis on its reedy river in that valley does not look the part of the world's most famous wine town.

There is not a hoarding, not an illumination, not a whisper; of the fact that round the world, everyday, as much wine is drunk under its name as it often produce in a whole harvest.

While every wine producing country of the new world, and several of the old has appropriated the name for any dry (or even sweet) white or even pink wine, real Chablis continues to be produced in limited quantities, with real distinction. So distinctive, is it, in fact, that is not everybody's taste.

Chablis sends one rummaging for descriptive phrases even more desperately than most wines.

There is something there one can so nearly put a finger on. It is hard but not harsh, reminds one of stones and minerals, but at the same time of green hay; actually, when it is young, looks green, which many wines are supposed to.

Grand Cru Chablis tastes important, strong, almost immortal. And indeed, it does last a remarkably long time; a strange and delicious sort of sour taste enters into it at ten years or so and its golden green eye flashes meaningfully.

Prices in the relatively rare great years are accordingly high and always have been. A great bottle of Chablis has never been cheap, but few people realize just what style and character lie behind the too famous name.

ALSACE

The wine of Alsace reflects the curious situation of a border province. Alsace makes Germanic wines in the French way. To put the difference in a nutshell, the Germans look for sweetness, the Alsatians for strength.

German wine at his best is not for the table, but the drawing room, or the garden.

Alsatian wine is the great adjunct to one of France's most splendid cuisine.

The Gewuerztraminer is the perfect introduction to Alsace. You would not think that so fruity a scent could come from any wine so clean and dry.

Gewuerz mean spice in German, the spice is there all the way down, and stays on your palate for two or three minutes after you have swallowed. It has its place with some of the richest dishes; Goose and Pork.

RHONE
THE LOIRE VALLEYS AND MUSCADET

Even if they are spread over 600 miles of France, with wide variations of climate, soil, tradition, and four or five different grape sorts, they have a real family likeness: they are light, grapy, appetizing and charming.

They divide clearly between the dry wines to the east (Sancerre and Pouilly) and the west (Muscadet) and the sweeter wines of Touraine and Anjou in the middle. The Valley of the Loire and the Valley of the Rhone are two sides of the same coin. Rhone wines range from the excellent and strong orange and pink rose of Tavel to the powerful soft fruit scent of the Chateauneuf DuPape to the collector's wines of Condrieu with the inner sanctum four acre estate of Chateau Grillet, the smallest vineyard with its own Appellation Controlee in France.

Grillet, produced by an unusual grape, the Viognier is a rather delicate, dry wine with a haunting floral scent like a faint and disturbing echo from Rhine and a very long, rather spicy aftertaste.

BORDEAUX AND SAUTERNES

Graves as a whole is known chiefly for its white wines; dry to medium sweet, pale yellow, with a peculiar, faintly chemical or metallic character, the best example is Chateau Carbonnieux.

Chateau Haut Brion, roughly 50% Semillon, 50% Sauvignon Blanc has a very pronounced yellow color, honeyed Semillon, beautifully complex bouquet, dry with a good body and flavour, the great brother of the greatest red of the region.

The famous white wine of Sauternes is a specialty which finds its only real rival not in France at all but in Germany.

The Special technique used takes full advantage of the peculiar form of the mold (known as Botrytis Cinerea) which forms on the grapes, leaving the sugar and the flavouring elements in the juice more concentrated than ever. The result is wine with an intensity of taste and scent, and a smooth, almost oil like texture, which can be made no other way.

Chateau d'Yquem was made a First Great Growth - rank created for it alone in all Bordeaux in 1855.

It is a sublime, very sweet, rich textured, flower scented, glittering golden liquid. The king of the white wines and probably the most expensive one. Suggested with Goose liver and for meditation.

ST. ESTEPHE

The Graves bank which give the Medoc and its wine their quality and character, stretching long the shore of the river Gironde. Sheltered from the ocean to the west of forest, begin to prefer out at St. Estephe.

It is the northern most of the four famous countries which are the heart of the Medoc. A little "jalle" divides it from Pauillac, sharing on the one hand, the vineyards of Chateau Lafite, on the other three classed growths of St. Estephe, namely Chateau Cos d' Estournel, Lafite-Rochet and Cos-labory.

The wines have more acidity, are fuller, solid, often have less perfume, but fairly fill your mouth with flavor. They are sturdy clarets which become with age, gentle but still vigorous, unfaded. Chateau Cos d' Estournel is the most spectacular of the classed growths.

RED BORDEAUX
PAUILLAC

If one had to single out one commune of Bordeaux to head the list, there would be no argument, it would be Pauillac. Chateau Lafite, Latour and Mouton Rothschild, three out of the first five of the Medoc and Graves, are its obvious claim. But many claret lovers would tell you that the wines of Pauillac have the quintessential flavor they look for in Bordeaux - a combination of fresh soft fruit, oak, dryness subtlety combined with substance, a touch of cigar box a suggestion of sweetness. Even the lesser growths of Pauillac approach their ideal claret.

CHATEAU LAFITE ROTHSCHILD

First classified growth Pauillac situated on the best vineyard of Pauillac, already described by the poet Ausone around 325 A.D The great "Seigneur" of Medoc has a very pleasant bouquet, a delicacy and personality unrivaled. Extremely savoury, one can detect in it the harmony of violet perfume associated with almond taste It has its first place among the most prestigious banquets in the world.

CHATEAU MOUTON ROTHSCHILD

This wine of an exceptional quality has gained its place among the very first and its class is thus justified. It's beautiful quality, its perseverance, year after year, in order to choose the best plants have led to a wine of remarkable flavour and bouquet. Its reputation is no more to be done and when you taste such wine, nose as well as palate are entirely satisfied. It is generally a full bodied wine, but with a certain power allied with great delicacy.

CHATEAU LATOUR

This First Classified Growth is one of the eldest vineyards of the Medoc area. Its Prestigious reputation is motivated by the quality of this wine, and derives from its exceptional geographical position on a little hill overlooking Pauillac and St. Julien. It is a powerful wine, of great class, good bouquet, with a fairly exceptional "prolongement". Moreover its power gives it a great long life.

RED BORDEAUX
ST. JULIEN

No other commune in Bordeaux has so high a proportion of classed growths as St. Julien. It is a small commune, with the smallest production of the famous four of the Medoc, but almost all of it is superlative wine growing land, typical dunes of gravel, not as deep as in Pauillac but very close to the river and consequently well drained. If Pauillac makes the most striking and brilliant wine of the Medoc, and Margaux the most refined and exquisite, St Julien forms the transition between the two, with one or two exceptions its Chateau make rather round and gentle wine, gentle, that is when it is mature, it starts as tough and tannic in a good year as any.

CHATEAU DUCRU BEAUCAILLOU

We recognize in this wine of scarlet colour the great qualities of one of the very first among the second classified growths. Its fine bouquet, its charm and its soft "body" are harmoniously balanced and give great satisfaction to the most advised connoisseurs. This wine can be drunk with nearly all dishes, except for too spicy sauces, which would hide its great quality.

MARGAUX

By many accounts this, the southern most stretch of the Haut-Medoc, makes the finest wine off all.

Margaux has a tight concentration of classed growths. The soil of Margaux is the thinnest in the Medoc, with the highest proportion of rough gravel.

It has the least to offer the vine in the way of nourishment, but it drains well even in rainy years. The result is wines which start life comparatively "supple", though in poor years they can turn out thin. In good and great years, however, all the stories about the virtues of gravel are justified.

There is a delicacy about good Margaux, and a sweet haunting perfume, which makes it the most exquisite claret of all.

The wines of Chateau Margaux and Chateau Palmer next door are the ones which most often reach such heights. Chateau Margaux is not only a first growth of the Medoc, it is the one which most looks the part: a pediment at the end of an avenue, the air of a Mansion, with chaise to match.

CHATEAU MARGAUX, PREMIER GRAND CRU CLASSE EN 1855

RED BORDEAUX
ST. EMILION

The old town of St. Emilion is the little gem of the Bordelas. St. Emilion makes rich red wine. Before many people can really come to terms with the dryness and delicacy of Medoc wine they love the solid tastiness of St. Emilion. The best of them in ripe and sunny seasons grow almost sweet as they mature.

St. Emilion is not classified as the Medoc is. It merely divided its Chateaux (in 1954) into Premiers Grands, Crus and Grand Crus. There are 12 Premiers Grand, Cru`s headed by Cheval Blanc and Chateau Ausone in a separate category of two that like the nearly Chateau Petrus in Pomerol fetch the same colossal prices as the first growths of the Medoc.

CHATEAU CHEVAL BLANC

Plummy colour, fairly full bodied, distinct earthy/iron hallmark, very dry, good aftertaste, and exceptional wine. The "Seigneur" of the St. Emilions. Suggested with beef, game and lamb.

RED BORDEAUX
GRAVES

The district of Graves takes its name from its gravel and sandy soil. Only a small part of the big region reaches distinction; the part near Bordeaux where the majority of the wines are red. They have much in common with the stouter and drier wines of the Medoc.

The greatest red Graves are however in their own way the equivalent of the best wines even of Pauillac and Margaux. The fact was recognized by the authorities who classed Chateau Haut Brion with three Chateaux of the Medoc as a first growth. Today Haut Brion has a big challenger in Chateau La Mission-Haut-Brion, a marvelously fruity, complex, deep scented wine.

CHATEAU PAPE CLEMENT

This famous wine has a very old reputation. It was created in 1300 by Bertrand de Goth, Archbishop of Bordeaux, which was elected Pope in 1306. This beautiful estate produces wines full of "sap", of great delicacy and of a very luminous colour. It is a good keeping wine, of a fine bouquet, very round, with suppleness and well balanced.

POMEROL

It is curious there should be a new star in such an ancient wine country as Bordeaux. You would think it has all been known for centuries. Yet, although Romans had vineyards in Pomerol a hundred years ago it was known only for "good common" wine. Yet today, its best Chateau fetches the same price as the first growth of the Medoc, and an astonishing number of properties, for such a small area, are generally agreed to be among the best in the whole of Bordeaux.

The Pomerols are the gentlest, richest, most instantly appealing claret They have deep colours without the acidity and tannin that often goes with it, a comforting ripe smell, and sometimes great concentration of all their qualities; the striking essence of a great wine.

CHATEAU PETRUS

Deep, velvety appearance, sweet bouquet, full of fruit, with characteristics, mulberry richness, full bodied, scarce and very high priced. Considered by many the best red wine in the world.

RED BURGUNDY

Burgundy is not one vineyard, but the name of a province which contains at least three of France's best.

By far the richest and most important is the Cote d'Or, in the center, composed of the Cote de Nuits and Cote de Beaune.

In Burgundy most of the land belongs to small farmers. The total production of fine wine in Bordeaux is often ten times that of Burgundy.

The Cote d'Or has a monopoly of the best red vineyards, and produces what its growers and about half the world besides, consider the finest red wine on earth.

Chambertin and Clos de Beze are often called the greatest wines of the whole region.

Chambertin is the wine for moments of great decision, or great joints of beef on the bone or other things that have plenty of flavour, character and savour of their own.

The Grand Cru of Chambolle Musigny is Le Musigny a slightly more delicate wine than Chambertin. The soft savoriness of Burgundy come out in it more than in any other wine, in what French tasters call "the peacock's tail", flavours within flavours.

Clos Vougeot on the southern border of Chambolle is considered the claret of Burgundy. It is markedly drier than most Burgundies, almost feminine, has the most beautiful scent in Burgundy with a faint suggestion of autumnal darness.

Grand Echezeaux and Bonnes Mares are probably the two least known of the world's greatest wines.

The wine of the tiny vineyard of Romanee Conti has something almost oriental about its fragrance which makes it immediately recognizable. In the same Domaine, we find also Romanee St. Vivant, the biggest, not quite such a perfumed and splendid wine.

La Tache, which in truth is often better even than the most expensive and Le Richebourg, which also has its supporters for the crown.

Vosne Romanee les Beaumonts is very well known and of very high quality. Nuits St. Georges - Les St. George is a typical, soft, savory wine with plenty of meal in it.

Corton in the Cote de Beaune is the other big wine of the areas, at par with Chambertin.

WHITES FROM ITALY
WHITE, SPARKLING AND ROSE

Italy is the largest producer of wines in the world.

The best have good characters, the right balance and the right shade of quality, a refreshing scent and a lovely greenly gold color. Italy vineyards are almost never named on labels as they are in France and Germany. The name of an Italian wine is either that of the grape variety involved or of the district where it was made.

CLASSICAL ITALIAN REDS

Renaissance is not too strong word for what is happening to the Italian wine industry at the moment.

Districts which used to make wine adequately are making it well and districts which used to make it well are excelling themselves. Red wine has always been Italy's trump card.

Two parts of Italy can grow red wine which is in the international front rank Piedmont and Tuscany.

Barolo and Barbaresco are big, fruity, fine wines with a scent of raspberries and mushrooms. Great wine to drink with roast. The Chianti, the best known of all Italian wines, is not to be drunk young. The "riservas" appear on the market at about eight years old. They have scent, character, delicacy and great smoothness. A velvety sap on a slightly bitter almond taste. It is superb wine for red meats.

Brunello di Montalcino with his ruby/orange colour great finesse and elegance, round but dry is now considered at par with the first growths of Bordeaux. Must be served quite warm (22°C) and is the perfect marriage with red meats and strong cheeses. We suggest to decant even the younger years for breathing.

GERMAN WINES

95% of German wines are blended and give uncomplicated pleasure but the best 5% of such wines are so full of character, charm and (if the world does not sound too pedantic) interest, that they are best enjoyed, unlike French wines, along rather than with food.

Their secret is the balance of sugar against acidity. Sugar without acid would be flat, acid without sugar would be sharp! German wines are low in alcohol, light body and with distinct bouquet.

Eiswein, Trockenbeerauslese, Beerenauslese, Auslese represent the marvelous rarities of the finest grapes for very special occasion.

THE LANGUAGE OF THE LABEL

QUALITAETSWEIN MIT PRAEDIKAT - strictly controlled top quality wine.

KABINETT - wine made from late gathered and therefore riper grapes, better than Kabinett.

AUSLESE - Spaellese from which all unripe grapes have been rejected.

BEERENAUSLESE - made from only the ripest grapes.

TROCKENBEERENAUSLESE - made from grapes which have been shriveled either from very late gathering or "noble rot".

EISWEIN - wine made of grapes which were frozen during the harvest and pressing rare and unusually very sweet.

AMERICAN WINES

California is where the greatest, most exciting developments are taking place in the world of wine.

Chardonnay has been the most spectacularly successful California varietal and can be light, heavy, fruity, bitterly or oaky though source Chardonnays are not recognizably varietal at all.

Cabernet Sauvignon is another European wine throughout, that has taken well to northern California. But because of soil differences, and the warmer climate, it makes a wine of different weight and style to Bordeaux and many "taste offs", of California Cabernet versus Claret verge on the fatuous, like trying to say which is the best cheese, brie or stilton.

There are great Cabernet Sauvignons but this does not mean that all of California Cabernets are great. Far from it. Moreover, because of climate and soil the wines tend to be deep, heavy and alcoholic, lacking finesse but they keep well and improve with bottle age.
